Career Success Could be Just an Office Enhancement Away

A client had been looking for a job for a long time. He finally moved the baby's nursery from the Career area of the house to another room and turned the Career area into a home office filled with Career representations. He soon landed a job he loves. Feng Shui works! This could be you!

Whether in your home or at work, your office can act to empower or disempower you. What you do there leads directly to your prosperity and success. What is your office doing to your energy?

Ideal Locations for home or work offices: If your work is action oriented it is best located in the front of the home or office building: Knowledge/ Self Cultivation, Career or Helpful People areas. If your work is more contemplative the ideal location is towards the back, where the energy is more peaceful. If you can't control the location of your office, whether in your place of business or at home, apply Feng Shui principles creating a more positively charged energy flow.

Recommendations for creating powerful home and business offices:

- The most important recommendation is that your desk is placed so that you're sitting in the room's most powerful "command" position. You want to have a perfect view of the door. It is also best to have a solid wall, not a window, behind you. If you can't move away from the window, put plants, shades or furniture as a buffer between you and the window. If your desk is built in, and you can't reposition it, put a mirror on or behind your desk to reflect the door.
- As always in Feng Shui, being organized is critical. Productive Ch'i can't find its way through piles of papers, files and office equipment. Your productivity will skyrocket if you adopt an organizing strategy and stick to it.
- Your chair, or "throne" should be the most comfortable and ergonomically correct for you.
- Choose a desk large enough to store all of your work and give you adequate working space. Ensure that all wiring is hidden in desk openings, or behind screens or plants.
- This is a place for powerful art and colors, as well as awards, diplomas, and certificates that represent your career and contributions to the world.

Just as you would apply the Bagua to your entire home, you can apply the same Bagua just to your office. Beginning at its front entrance, check the arrangement of your office on the Bagua Map.

The Feng Shui Bagua (Ba-gua) Map, is represented as a grid of nine sectors. The Bagua comes from the Chinese philosophy, "The I Ching," and literally means "eight trigrams" with the center for grounding.

The areas within your office should take on the qualities of the Bagua area in which they reside. Stand at your office door and face the room. Determine if you are entering from Knowledge, Career or Helpful People, and arrange the room accordingly. By placing objects in your office that anchor the various Bagua areas you stimulate and sustain your creative juices and provide your office with meaning and balance. Because your office is obviously smaller than your entire home/building, the fixes can be small yet powerful.

Your Desk and the Bagua

The same Bagua principles can also be applied when arranging your desk. For example: place a calculator, crystal bowl, computer monitor or bamboo garden in Wealth area (back left), a paperweight award, name plaque, or lamp in Fame (back center), a vase with 2 roses, a picture of you and your mate in the Love area (back right), pens, markers or pictures of your children in Children and Creativity (right center), a telephone in Helpful People (right front corner), a black desk blotter, or laptop computer in Career (in front where you sit), books or papers in Knowledge and Self Cultivation (front left corner), an inbox with work files, a small flowering plant such as an orchid in Family, Friends, Health area (left center).

Feng Shui at Work

One of our biggest success stories was the remodel of our home office which is in the Career sector of our home. For many years the old, cluttered desk resided in the right back corner of the room (Love/Marriage area) with the users back to the door and facing the wall. Being an interior room, with no windows, the lighting was very poor. I never enjoyed being in there. My husband worked for a large corporation but did most of his work from home. It wasn't until his project ended and he was offered retirement early, that I realized how disempowered our office was making him. We quickly made plans to install a light tube for natural light and replaced the dingy carpeting with beautiful hardwood floors. We purchased a large oak desk, but before we had the desk completely installed, we took time sitting in different areas of the room to get a sense of where the power area was. In other words, where would we enjoy sitting and what would we enjoy looking at the most? My husband and I both agreed to place it in the middle the Fame wall with our backs in the Wealth area facing the door. Now we look out to the entrance foyer, which is one of my favorite rooms in the house. We also took the opportunity to purge old files and create a sleek positive working environment. With an elemental balance and a place for everything the energy shift could be felt almost immediately. My husband was offered a lucrative job for a new corporation, utilizing his skills and being appreciated which made him feel productive once again. My career has also blossomed, with more class participants, home consultations and educational consulting. Now I can't wait to sit behind the desk to write my columns, write my Feng Shui consultation reports or just check e-mail from clients.

Let Feng Shui help you achieve success you long for and enjoy your newfound achievements.

Affirmations:

Remember that in Feng Shui, intent plays a significant role in enhancing any area of your home or business. All enhancements need to be made with intentionality; written or stated affirmations which are expressed as if they are already happening are very important. Examples of affirmations for the Office area: "Everything I touch is a success", "Everyday my work attracts magnificent people and opportunities in my life."
